Ralph Waldo Emerson: Selected Journals
Internal Cross-References

Occasionally within his journals, Emerson refers parenthetically to other passages in the journals. The following is a list of these cross-references, keyed to the LOA edition; Emerson's cross-reference (omitted from the text of the LOA edition) is in bold type. In cases where the passages referred to are not included in the LOA edition, The Journals and Miscellaneous Notebooks of Ralph Waldo Emerson (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1960–1982, Ralph H. Orth et al., eds.) is cited.

Example I.311.25 "actual beings V. p. 87" :
I.345.9 "barnyard. p. 33"

"I.311.25" is Volume One, page 311, line 25 of the LOA edition. Emerson's manuscript reads "actual beings V. p. 87". The cross-reference omitted from the LOA edition, "V. p. 87," refers to the corresponding cross-reference, "barnyard. p. 33," on page 87 of Emerson's manuscript (found on page 345 of the LOA edition).

Example I.322.28 "compel nobody. See further Aug. 17" :
I.336.9–337.40

In some cases, Emerson left out a reference on the corresponding page. In this example, Emerson refers to the entry for August 17, which contains no cross-reference to the first passage, so the lines in the LOA edition for the August 17th entry are given.

Example I.670.38 "less. See Ω p. 107" :
I.189.7–23

In cases where Emerson left out the reference on the corresponding page and did not indicate a specific passage he is referring to, the lines in the LOA edition for the entire manuscript page are given.

Example I.325.38 "ignorance. See Journal 1832 13 May" :
JMN IV, 13

Finally, where the corresponding reference is not included in the LOA edition, the citation refers to the Harvard edition.
